Like Working from Home, but with Better Views; Cabins at Adventures on the Gorge Offer Change of Scenery and Rewarding Activities

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va., September 28, 2020 - Adventures on the Gorge (AOTG) in Southern West Virginia is offering an alternative to those who want a break from their home offices, but not necessarily a vacation. With a wide selection of single- and multi-bedroom cabins and private houses featuring Wi-Fi and work space, guests can focus on producing proposals, screenplays, sales letters and any other number of job responsibilities.

“When we installed all of those routers in the cabins and common areas a few years ago, we were responding to guests’ requests to allow them to monitor work and stay connected to friends and family,” said Roger

The New River Gorge is renowned for its views.

Wilson, CEO of AOTG. “Now that working remotely is a mainstay, we are happy to be prepared to offer these options for those who need a change of scenery while they make their livings.”

The resort’s accommodations are concentrated in a woody area near the rim of the famed New River Gorge where many of the adventures, trip meeting areas, restaurants, retail stores and accommodations are located. Activities - after work, of course - include whitewater rafting, a ropes course, ziplining, hiking, rock climbing, fishing and biking.

Lodging options best for remote working include:
